

Deep Ecology

A holistic approach to facing world problems that brings together thinking, feeling, spirituality and action

<https://pixabay.com/en/earth-globe-birth-new-arise-661447/>

“The earth does not belong to humans.” - Arne Naess

Tag: ecology, social: deep connection

Challenge:

Approaching the Earth and its resources from an anthropocentric utilitarianism/exploitation point of view led us to resources crisis, starting with peak oil. Beyond this, effects like climate change are hard to be ignored.

.

Solution:

A philosophy, movement, and method to raise awareness, and deepening the connection between human living being and all non-human living being on the planet.

“Work that reconnects” – the work of Joanna Macy, brings an evolutionary perspective about about self-organizing systems and a hope for the humanity. Experiencing ourselves as part of the living earth and finding our role in protecting the planet.

Reference:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Deep_ecology

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Joanna_Macy

<https://www.thegreenfuse.org/johnstone.htm>

Submitted by Romania in Transition Association A.R.T

